This is the beginning. What you hold in your hands is just a book. A collection of a few moments out of one year out of the many years of our lives.

Our way of reminding ourselves and everyone else who we are and what we did.

Preface

m o v e - i n

Freshmen moved into their new homes early in September, followed shortly thereafter by returning students. "I thought I was going to get lost," commented new arrival Dara Anderson, "but it turned out to be really easy." FYI helped to acclimate new students to FSC life, while returning students quickly fell into the usual routine.

Hauling another load of goodies from his car, freshman Daniel Traynham makes his way into Hollis Residence Hall.

Have no fear! Lindsay Blankenship, Erica Eggert, Shamilah Ivory, Elise Berkowitz, and Becky Brown show their might as FYI leaders.

Leanne Spradlin gets a little help moving into her residence hall. Many students brought all the comforts of home to their small rooms.

A Bay News 9 reporter takes an interview during the freshman move-in in September. The news crew interviewed several students and faculty throughout the day and filmed students as they settled into their new homes.

welcome week

Rachel Van plays with Heirs Apart at Club Fest in September. Van, a Music major in her junior year, was exposed to music at an early age and began playing violin at age three. "I love music because I love communicating with an audience what God has put in my heart," says Van. "There is nothing like a concert rush," she adds, "any musician would understand that."

Local act, Ev Angel, grinds out a melodic riff outside Club Fest. Along with Heirs Apart, the band provided musical entertainment during the afternoon event.

in the spotlight

Florida Southern loves to be entertained.

Smalltown Poets, the popular Christian alternative band, took the stage in October, followed by comedian Mike Williams. The Music Department got in on the action as well with the faculty showcase, "Millenium."

Red Letter Day performs during an ACE Coffee House. The two person act featured a variety of instruments and styles from traditional blues rock to modern acoustic pop.

Mike Williams parodies Ringo Starr during the October Convocation. Williams was well received by students and provided one of the most entertaining Convocations of the year, but not without a message. Williams shared with students how his faith in Christ helped him to rise above a difficult street life.

The evidence of a massive remodeling and construction effort was obvious, from Edge Hall to Branscomb Auditorium. Improvements such as parking lot lights, new doors and windows down sorority row, and fresh paint on Annie Pfeifer Chapel were well received by students.

Construction workers talk outside the partially constructed addition to Branscomb Auditorium. The new building was just part of the many projects on campus which included the renovations of Polk Science and Edge Hall.

Workers pressure wash the exterior of Branscomb Auditorium. Aside from structural renovations, some of the most striking improvements were made through the beautification of existing buildings.

Advancing-the-Flame Scholarship

The Advancing-the-Flame matching scholarship program allows United Methodist Churches across the country to financially sponsor a student at FSC. Florida Southern will match the amount given by the church, up to $1000. During the 1999-2000 school year, this program provided $194, 790 in scholarships for 103 FSC students .

Florida Southern College's Art department provides undergraduate course work for students planning to enter into art education, studio art, and graphic design. Although these programs are very different from one another, the students share a love of art. Every effort is made to enhance a student's creativity and encourage individual pursuits of artistic vision.

Of the many fields that existed during the early 20th Century, few have experienced as much dramatic growth and change as chemistry and physics. These two areas touch nearly every aspect of our lives, generating many of the most exciting and profound discoveries of modern times. The study of matter and how it's created, changed, and manipulated, is among the most fascinating and fast-paced majors at Florida Southern.

The study of languages goes far beyond conversation and writing. A real understanding of any language unravels the secrets of its origin, history, and culture of its speakers.

Students can study three major languages which have shaped Western Civilization for centuries and continue to affect our society today: French, German and Spanish.

The Lady Moccasins Volleyball team had a very successful season. Early on, the Lady Mocs set a goal to finish in the top two of the South Regional Championships. They finished second only to University of Tampa, the national championship runner-up. The high point of the season was defeating Barry University at the NCAA South Regional Championships. The match marked FSC's first win against Barry in nearly 10 years.

"We had a lot to prove this year after losing three stand-out seniors," said team captain Sara Stewart. "The team rose to the occasion and we are looking forward to bigger and better things with the entire team returning." Stewart and team member Christie White were named All-South Regional Team. Stewart was also named Second Team All-American.

"The will to win means nothing without the will to prepare."

The Cross Country team practiced, competed, and lived by this quote. As they prepared for a season of many competitions, their goals quickly came into sight: to win Sunshine State Conference, do well in Southeast Regional races, and advance to Nationals. When the team learned that the women had qualified to compete for the National Cross Country championship, excitement filled everyone; this was the season's most memorable moment. The men won the Sunshine State Conference, and finished seventh in the Regional competition, making this season extremely successful for the entire team.

The men's soccer team played hard, practiced hard, and had a wonderful season. In fact, the team pulled through with 13 wins--the most in school history! One win in particular gave the team incredible encouragement and confidence: a 3-0 win against the University of Tampa. Practicing 16 hours every week pulled the team close together and made for a great spirit of camaraderie. Coach Kris Pahl commented, "This is an extremely close group. They even sing team songs..." The women's soccer team worked to win. They worked to grow. They worked to develop their camaraderie. These dedicated athletes put in many hours of practice, both in and out of season, which paid off as their season began. On September 16, 1999, the team gained their first conference win against Rollins College. The season progressed and they continued working to become the best at what they do. As long as the team keeps striving for this goal, every year will hold a successful season. Team captains Angela Rogell and Val Kraycsik have just one question, "Coach, can we get new uniforms next year?"

Men's

January 12th, with adrenaline flowing, the men's basketball team felt true victory as they defeated Rollins College by 37 points in front of a raucous Field House crowd-- one of many goals the team had set. Winning the Sunshine State Conference and working towards the National Championship are other goals the team strives for every year. "The men's basketball program has followed a thirty-year tradition of excellence," says Asst. coach Patrick Henry, "This year's team, with 16 straight victories to open the season, has set an all-time mark."

Boys' Lady Moccasins women's basketball team attributes its success to amazing team chemistry and a positive, supporting coaching staff. This year the team set forth goals to be undefeated at home games as well as win the regular season SSC title and SSC tournament. Senior co-captain Tasha Smith said, "We have high expectations this year. We want to finish first in conference, win the conference tournament and also extend our season into post-season play." With these high expectations comes determination. The women devoted as many hours to practice during the non-conference (November-December) and conference (January-February) schedule. Memorable moments for the team include defeating the number six ranked team, Northern Kentucky (76-59), and the number 11 ranked team, Northern Michigan (69-55). "This has been an excellent team to coach. I think they display great teamwork," said coach Diane Foli.

Our baseball team has one common goal. Head Coach Chuck Anderson identified that it is, "To be the best, to become National Champions." This is the objective set out in front of the baseball team every year. Florida Southern baseball has brought home a national championship at least once a decade since the 1970's, and this year is no different. Each member of the team is dedicated to long hours of practice, working hard on the field, doing all that is in their power to win, and reaching for that one common goal. And with that, a national championship is within their reach. It is an experience that will not soon be forgotten. As senior B.J. Garrison said, "It has been a great experience playing for the number one baseball program in America."

The history of the softball team is held in great esteem. With many wins and titles behind them, they entered this season prepared to win. Great expectations for the team to live up to the standards set by teams in past years built a strong sense of teamwork and sportsmanship. As their 20-hour practice weeks pushed them to reach their goal to win the Sunshine State Conference, motivation and determination built. Eventually the team reached this goal, winning the title for the 18th consecutive year and qualifying for post-season play for the 13th straight year.

The water ski team experienced many victories this season. Among these victories were winning the Southern Conference and qualifying to compete in the U.S. Collegiate Nationals in California. Their practice schedule was rough and tough (five hours daily throughout the season). However, their dedication pulled them through and paid off in the end, when they placed sixth at Nationals. This group of athletes exhibited extreme teamwork through their respect, organization, and politeness; they were always looking out for one another. "After a long dry spell we are glad to welcome back an exceptionally strong Florida Southern College team, and look to see great things from them in the future," commented John Goodman, Chief Judge at the U.S. Nationals.

Pi Kappa Phi was founded at the College of Charleston in Charleston, South Carolina on December 10, 1904. The Beta Beta chapter was installed on the Florida Southern campus on October 16, 1948.

The symbols of Pi Kappa Phi are the Star, the Lamp, the Crossed Swords, and the Rose. Their colors are Blue, Gold, and White.

Pi Kappa Phi is the only fraternity to ever create and sustain its own philanthropy organization, PUSH America. The project's goal is to raise money and awareness of the severely handicapped.

The Pi Kappa Phi Bull Dog.

The brothers of Pi Kappa Phi celebrate the music and clothes of the 1970's at a rush party.

Rho Chi

Each year, a select group of women are chosen to serve as Rush Counselors for Panhellenic. Their job is to introduce freshman and transfer students to Greek Life, as well as act as advisors and sources of information throughout the Rush experience.

Rho Chi's are asked to disaffiliate themselves from their sororities and represent the entire Panhellenic council. By disaffiliating, Rho Chi's help encourage students to rush and choose the house that is right for them. Rho Chi's try to make this experience as fun and positive as possible.

Katie Beauchamp, Sumer Childress, Ali Barrett, Teresa Bowman, Jenn Golden, and Sarah St. John with Rho Chi sweetheart, Matt Barrett.

Rho Chi's run down the hill beside Sorority Row, and back to their houses on Bid Day.

from the editor

Scattered around my monitor are piles of photographs, labels, and the occasional grease pencil. Just outside my tiny office in the Dockery Lab, my staff is finishing the index. Beside my desk, in a large brown box, are the last of the envelopes to be sent off to the publisher. It's hard to think that this little project is over. No more late nights, no more appointments, no more deadlines. I just finished a conversation with next year's editor-in-chief. Until now, the future beyond our final deadline hasn't even occurred to me. Soon enough, this will be done. The highs and lows of the past six months will slowly dissolve into a distant memory as I shift my attention to repairing the effects of my neglect in French class. The students of Florida Southern will have another book to put on their shelves.

There were times when I resented this job and all the frustration it brought. This book has monopolized my thoughts and turned my stomach for the better part of one year. Ironically, as we make our final push towards our last deadline, I feel a strange affection for the book we've made and I consider myself fortunate to have had staffers, friends, and family who helped me complete this project.

Of course, this is my opportunity to thank the many people who supported me throughout this endeavor. So, if the reader will forgive me, I'll indulge myself. I'd like to thank my parents for providing continuous support throughout this experience. They listened to my gripes and offered heartfelt advice when I needed it most. I'd also like to thank Fred my assistant editor. There is no question that without Fred's help this project could not have been completed. I must also thank certain people less directly involved. Everyone at the lunch table provided much humor when I was under the weather. Aaron Marsh gave Fred and I music to sing along with during the long hours in the office. Dr. Paula Buck lent a sympathetic ear every time I unexpectedly wandered into her office. Tom Blair turned on his computer and showed me the wonderful mental health benefits of Quake III. Nancye Wilbur and Laura O'Bryant kept telling me I could when I thought I couldn't.

I hope the readers of this book will appreciate all of the hard work that went into assembling this document. It was no small task to get this book into your hands. Therefore, it is my sincere hope that the Florida Southern community will enjoy this book and will return to it's pages for many years to come. Good luck and God bless you all in whatever your future holds.
